I've been thinking about the County's process since we met the other day. It is very possible that the County has not made a decision because they are concerned that they do not have enough information to make a fully informed decision. If that is the case, it makes sense for them to pause while they find that information and clarify any questions they may have. It is an important decision on a complex issue, so it would not be surprising if they need some additional time to ensure that they are making the right decision.

It was just frustrating to be held responsible for a decision not being made, when the decision is not within our authority to make.
